To be SOLD by the INVENTOR,

(At Nine-Pence an Ounce,)

At the Golden Ball, in Shire-Lane, Temple-Bar, London,

CUDWORTH's New-Invented Powder for Shaving; the Qualities far exceed any Thing of the Kind: It is of that softening Nature to Hair, as to make it cut easy for tender Faces; and if the Face be Sun-burnt, rough, or chapped by the Weather, it will heal it, and make the Skin soft and smooth; nor will it make it smart, or dry like Soap, but is pleasant and agreeable, and its Ingredients are harmless; no Climate will alter it, and the Lather is strong; you may warm it at the Fire in cold Weather, and it will not go down. This Powder is Sold as above; where may be had the best of Pocket-Brushes for using it. Where also may be had, and at no other Place in Town, a flat Razor-Strop, that will keep Razors in perfect Order for Shaving without the Use of a Hone, and Travelling-Boxes that hold all the Materials for Shaving, and lie as close as a common Pocket-Book; and Razors, proved by Shaving, cheaper than at any Place in Town.

DIRECTIONS for USING It.

PUT into a small Bason, the Quantity of a Pinch of Snuff, then dip the Brush in warm Water, and squeeze it into a Bason; then dip the Brush in again, and stir it about, and it will make a Lather as white as Snow, sufficient to Shave the Head and Face: For Washing take a little in your Hand, or put a little on a wet Napkin, and it will keep the Hands always Smooth and Soft.
